

ABSTRACT

A method of removing particulates from a gas stream uses an emission control system having a condenser and a scrubber. Water is added upstream and removed in the condenser and scrubber along with 5 particulates.

10

16